The Asian Producers' Platform (APP) is a performing arts producers network initiated in 2014 designed to create a strong network of Asian producers who can work effectively across the region, share and develop artistic works, professional skills and cultural practices.

Since 2014 the Platform has brought together over 45 Asian creative producers through a series of intensive APP camps in Seoul (2014), Taipei (2015), Tokyo (2016) and Melbourne (2017) where members researched the local arts and cultural scenes, cultural policy and the landscape artists work. Members have conducted in-depth research, created projects together, supported each other, developed professional practices and their own networks across the region. After the successful initial 5 years the APP Platform now grows the network towards South East Asia and other Asian regions with the 2018 APP Camp in Indonesia.

The Asian Producers' Platform (APP) offers participants the opportunity to:

- Research and explore local contexts in Asia
- Develop inter-cultural practices
- Explore producing as a creative practice
