DEADLINE
04 NOV 2012

Better Learning Better Life | Asia Pacific film/writing contest

Improving learning – not just education - is increasingly recognized as critical to development and better life. The previous meeting Towards EFA 2015 and Beyond: Shaping a New Vision for Education has also highlighted the fact that improving learning should be central to future development agendas.

But it must be recognized that perspectives on “learning” - what it is, what it should include and how it should be delivered, vary across cultures, disciplines and age-groups. The November meeting “Rethinking Learning in a Changing World” will therefore bring together renowned educationists, learning scientists, and economists from across the Asia-Pacific region and beyond to engage in a multi-disciplinary dialogue on learning. It’s also critical that the voice of young people be reflected in the discussion on and shaping of the future of learning and subsequently in the debate on the education goals and strategies beyond 2015.

This is a call for your support and an opportunity for you to make a difference – help the UN rethink learning in a changing world.

This contest is open to all who consider themselves ‘young people’ and who reside in Asia and the Pacific.

Entries can be submitted in English. In case of a video/film, any spoken text in other languages should be accompanied with English subtitles.
