Applications for the Marguerite Yourcenar writer-in-residence programme are now being accepted. The residency offers 1 to 2-month opportunities for writers to work in a calm and secluded location in the north of France.

The programme is open to European writers who already have been published professionally and are in the process of finishing a manuscript. Academic works will not be accepted.

Candidates will be informed by letter of the jury's decisions in June 2012. The chosen candidates will be able to stay from March to November 2013.

Residency Conditions

- Three writers can be housed simultaneously at the Villa Marguerite Yourcenar. Each one is allocated an office-bedroom with personal bathroom on the first floor.
- A shared library, kitchen, computer room (with photocopier, printer and Internet access), television room and dining room are available to residents.
- The Villa Marguerite Yourcenar provides resident writers with accommodation, breakfast and evening meals, except at weekends and Bank Holidays (telephone communications and lunch are at residents' own expense).

Three lunches and one evening at the residents' disposal

- Three bicycles and one car are at the residents' disposal.
- The Conseil Général du Nord will pay for one return trip home for each resident writer.
- Resident writers will receive a grant of €60 for each day they are effectively present, amounting to 1,800 euros for a 30-day stay.

The Villa Marguerite Yourcenar will:

- Submit all applications received within the set time to a jury of European literary experts.
- Inform successful candidates several months in advance that their application has been retained and of the dates they can stay at the Villa Marguerite Yourcenar.
