Asymmetry is an independent London-based non-profit art foundation dedicated to nurturing curatorial practices and the development of cultural knowledge in and about Asia through global exchange.

Asymmetry operates as a transnational, transdisciplinary, and forward-thinking organisation that fosters meaningful cultural exchange between creative practitioners, international institutions, and audiences through a range of initiatives. Asymmetry was founded by London-based patron and art collector Yan Du in 2019 after recognising that the advancement of curatorial practices, including the work of academics, writers, and thinkers, is essential to the arts eco-system, but not widely supported.

Asymmetry has fellowships, scholarships and public programmes.
