Bangkok University Gallery

The Bangkok University Gallery is a private gallery near the port, which displays the work of young Thai artists as well as established ones and focuses on more obscure and experimental multidisciplinary art. Administered by University's Faculty of Fine and Applied Arts, this small but important contemporary art gallery hosts a regular programme of changing exhibitions in all media.

The compound is located at what is currently the country's most cutting-edge art school. Recent exhibitions have encompassed a variety of media by some of the country's top names, as well as the work of internationally recognised artists. Bangkok University Gallery is committed to a learning center that works of art and design, including works of art and other cultures. It promotes community awareness of heritage, arts and culture as part of the lives of people in society.
