Media Lab

Ljudmila Ljubljana Digital Media Lab is an open-access digital media laboratory with extensive experience since 1994.

Founded by a group of new media artists and activists living and working in Ljubljana, Ljudmila is a successor to the former OSI-Slovenia programme. It has grown into a digital media lab that focuses on digital production as well as education, research and development of open standards software.

The lab connects new media technologies and artistic projects and encourages broader and more creative uses of new technologies. It also provides knowledge, equipment, internet access, websites, electronic publishing and other affordable networking services to non-governmental and non-profit organisations, art collectives, active individuals and others.
