Master School Drehbuch

Master School Drehbuch aims to provide screenwriters, script consultants, commissioning editors and producers the opportunity to broaden their knowledge and experience. The courses on offer at Master School Drehbuch are principally directed at experienced professionals. Although it is of great importance to give writers, dramatists and producers professional support, it is equally important to encourage the exchange of experience and ideas within the industry.

script!FORUM, established in 2000, is the first conference and exhibition within in Germany which has its focus especially on script and development. It offers specialised information and creates a forum for communication between dramaturges, writers, editors, producers, TV channels, film productions, film students and people who are interested in film, script and development.
